

INVITATION

Workshop Animal Breeding and Animal Genetic Resources
at the Institute for Animal Science and Animal Behaviour, Mariensee, Germany, on July 17/18, 2000

Dear Colleagues,

As part of the World Expo 2000 in Hannover/Germany a conference on "Sustainable Agriculture" has been organized as a virtual conference on the internet under www.agriculture.de. Along with the internet medium a 'real' conference on Animal Breeding and Animal Genetic Resources" will take place at the Institute for Animal Breeding and Animal Behaviour, Federal Agricultural Research Center (FAL) in Mariensee/Germany on July 17/18 2000.

The symposium in Mariensee is one of eleven workshops under the heading of "Sustainable Agriculture" organized in the wake of the World EXPO 2000. The workshop is organized by the local coordinators Peter Glodek, Göttingen University and Eildert Groeneveld, FAL Mariensee. The Chairman of the meeting is Dr. Louis Ollivier from INRA in Jouy-en-Josas.

The symposium will explore the relevance of the genetic resources to the current and future development in Animal Agriculture, in particular to breeding programs as they evolve in both high and low input systems. Speakers from Australia, Asia, Africa, Europe and the Americas will discuss the relevance of genetic resources in major species such as dairy, chicken, and pigs.

Because of the list of excellent speakers from around the world the workshop will be a great platform to exchange ideas about genetic resources in animal breeding on a truly global scale.

Looking forward to seeing many of you in Mariensee.

Peter Glodek and Eildert Groeneveld
